It is the future of the universe. It is the future of everything.

GETTING IN TOUCH WITH THE UNKNOWN

Humanity May Soon Be Connected by "Wireless."

THE PROBLEMS OF OCCULTISM

W. J. Colville, in Lecture Before Washington Spiritualist Society, Declares Mysteries of Existence Are Being Rapidly Probed by Science—Repertoire of Gestures.

Will humanity soon be connected with the spirit world by "wireless"? This puzzling problem, one of many intricacies in the work of harmonizing modern scientific and material developments with occultism, was touched upon by W. J. Colville, in his lecture before the Washington Spiritualist Society, in Pythian Temple, yesterday afternoon. "We are pushing into the unknown," said Mr. Colville, "probing rapidly into the mysteries of existence. Science is helping us. Science is heroic. We have telephony and telegraphy without wires to-day, hints of the subtle secrets of the ether; to-morrow we shall have intellectual and spiritual telephony."

Repertoire of Gestures.
The speaker then called his wide and varied repertoire of gestures into play. He threw out "wireless" messages from the tips of his long, bony fingers, arms extended, reaching out into the unknown, sweeping in great arcs across the horizon of the infinite. A supersensitive auditory nerve would have heard the "crackles" in the knuckles as the message went out. Mr. Colville's long, spare frame swayed eloquently as he emphasized his declarations, and even his nether limbs were brought vibrantly into the area of movement.

As gesture after gesture indicated the various spiritual Marconigrams, the speaker elucidated the meaning of modern science to spiritualism and clairvoyance.

Facts Established.
"A great preacher of the Christian church has said that the facts are established; that he who does not believe in communication with the spirit world is simply behind the times, out of fashion," he said. "The evidence is accumulating higher and higher; it is strong enough to convert any one who approaches the subject with an open mind. There is much ignorance and popular misconception of spiritualism."

"Spiritual communion, or the communion of the saints, as the Scriptures call it, is indicated in such modern words as collaboration, duel, etc. Men find it possible to work together for mutual purposes. The fact that these purposes are generally mundane in character simply re-enforces my point. Men and women sing in unison, find a larger harmony as the result of their working together. "That great book, 'All Sorts and Conditions of Men,' was the result of collaboration. Walter Besant and James Rice produced it, each one contributing a vital share; and if they worked together in life, why cannot they work together after one has passed the border?"

Essence of Spiritualism.
"That is the essence of spiritualism, divested of all the silly supernaturalism which some have chosen to cast about it. Surely it is natural and just that these men, such fast friends in life, should continue in communion after one has passed into another world."

"I might illustrate the matter in another way. A drummer, traveling from town to town, may belong to the 'Knights of the Grip.' In Washington he simply belongs to one lodge of the organization; in another city, to another; and so on. While in one city he may actually be, in spirit, in another. This is spiritualism."

LONDON DIVINE LECTURES.

Rev. Dr. Vaughan Opens Mission at Church of Sacred Heart.
Declaring that indifference in religion is one of the crying evils of the age, Rev. Herbert Vaughan, D. D., of London, England, last night preached the first sermon of the mission for non-Catholics at the Church of the Sacred Heart.

"A man without religion is a contradiction," said Dr. Vaughan, beginning his address. "France has tried to divorce morality from religion, and she can boast of the highest crime rate and the lowest birth rate among nations."
"Indifference is unreasonable and contrary to revelation and to the Scriptures. It must ultimately lead to agnosticism and infidelity. The effects of indifference are murder and race suicide."
The church was crowded to its capacity, which made the opening of the mission auspicious. Singing by the congregation was a feature of the services.

Rev. Alvan Doran, of Philadelphia, will preach at the services to-night.

ROUTED OUT OF BED.

Abraham Berkowitz and Family Have Narrow Escape from Death.
Six persons were routed from their beds by a fire early yesterday morning, which caused $300 damage in the grocery store of Abraham Berkowitz, 1137 Seventh street northwest.

Berkowitz, his wife, a son, Joseph; two daughters, Millie and Fannie, and a boarder, Henry Rosenstein, were asleep in apartments over the store when the blaze started.
Policeman Collins, of the Second precinct, saw the fire from the street, and turned in an alarm. He struck his night stick on the front door of the house until Berkowitz was awakened and came down stairs. The groceryman and Collins ran up the steps and assisted Mrs. Berkowitz and the children to the street. They left the house in their night clothes. Fifteen minutes later the fire was extinguished and the blaze started. The fire was confined to the front part of the store. It is thought the blaze was started by rats among matches. The loss is covered by insurance. Fire Marshal C. C. Nicholson made an investigation.

TELLS OF FATHERS-IN-LAW

Rev. Dr. Bailey Preaches at West Street Presbyterian Church.

Declares There Are "Sharp Corners on All of Us that Need to Be Rubbed Off."

"There are sharp corners on all of us that need to be rounded off in our daily intercourse with another," was the keynote of the sermon delivered last night by the Rev. Dr. George Bailey at the West Street Presbyterian Church on the subject of the ideal father-in-law.

"We all agree that Moses was a great man," said Dr. Bailey, "but we do not congratulate him often enough on his very felicitous choice of a father-in-law. Jethro might never have been heard of if he had not had Moses for a son-in-law, but, nevertheless, he had many admirable qualities which entitle him to our consideration."

Dr. Bailey then related the story of how Moses met the seven fair daughters of Jethro at the well, and how Jethro invited him to his home, gave him food, shelter, and employment. He pointed out that Moses, the poet and historian, needed just such a change of environment as he obtained in the employ of Jethro in order to develop his character.

He told of the marriage of Moses to Zipporah, the favorite daughter of Jethro, whom he described as a kind and conscientious father-in-law, who gave all that he had to his daughter's husband. He told of the family quarrels that arose when Moses announced his determination to return to Egypt, and of how he finally sent Zipporah back to her father because of their "incompatibility of temper."

URGES SUPREMACY OF MIND

Rev. Dr. Winbiger Declares Physical Ills May Be Conquered.

Says Man Now Stands on Threshold of Great Spiritual Awakening.

Speaks of Movement.

Urging the supremacy of mind over matter as the greatest triumph of man over his heritage of physical ills, Rev. Charles F. Winbiger, former pastor of the First Baptist Church, expounded the doctrine of the Emmanuel movement in a sermon at the Church of Our Father yesterday morning.

Recognized as the leader in this city of the movement started by Rev. Elwood Worcester, of the Emmanuel Church of Boston, Dr. Winbiger drew a large congregation.
"Man has gained physical perfection," he said, "but to attain perfect mastery over himself he must assert the great power of the mind. Man's lack of control over himself makes him pay a frightful price in retarded spiritual growth."
"Man now stands on the threshold of a great spiritual awakening," he said. "I doubt if we will ever have greater intellects than the ancients, but I also think we have reached a mental climax. I doubt if we will ever have greater poets than Shakespeare, or greater musicians than Mendelssohn and Mozart."

"It has remained for this great movement, started by Dr. Worcester, to put the means in our hands, and to cause him to understand the movement are not new, principles of the movement are not new, but they have been shown to have new application. It is this application, therefore, that we should learn, for it means the understanding of the great spiritual truths that will work our salvation."

LOST FARMER DIES IN FIELD

Lee Berris Succumbs to Exhaustion and Exposure.

Body Found Near Home at Beane, Md., by Brother and Searching Party.

Lost in a field, and unable to make his way to his home, which was only two miles away, Lee Berris, a well-known farmer near Beane, Montgomery County, Md., lay down and died. His body was found at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon by his brother Charles and a searching party composed of neighbors of the dead man.

Berris left Wilson's store, in Rockville, to go to his home at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon. When night came on, and Berris did not return, his brother and other relatives became alarmed. Neighbors were notified, and dozens of farmers searched the woods and fields along the road between Rockville and Beane all night without success. Early yesterday morning the search was renewed, and continued until the body was found.

There were no marks of violence on the body. Neither were there any indications of suicide. Much speculation as to the cause of Berris' death was indulged in until the coroner viewed the body, and announced that death had been the result of exhaustion and exposure.

It is conceded that Berris became bewildered, then lost his way and lay down in the field to spend the night. He had not been in good health for months, and by reason of his weakened condition was physically unable to withstand the exposure.

Berris was about forty years old and unmarried.

DR. HALE SPEAKS ON JOY OF LIVING

Chaplain of Senate Preacher at Howard University.

THREE PRINCIPLES OF LIFE

Advices Hearers to Live as Much as Possible in Open Air, to Touch Elbows with Rank and File, and "to Speak to Somebody Every Day You Know Is Your Superior."

In an address full of the joy of living, Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale spoke yesterday afternoon in the chapel of Howard University on "The Choice of an Occupation."

Every seat was taken by those who had come to hear the venerable chaplain of the Senate, and many stood in the aisles throughout the exercises.

Gives Three Principles.

Introduced by Dr. Wilbur P. Thirkield, president of the university, Dr. Hale said in part:

"I wish to give you three principles to follow in the selection of your life work. They are, first, to live as much as you can in the open air; second, to touch elbows with the rank and file, and third, to speak to somebody every day who you know is your superior."
"We are living in a beautiful world—beautiful because Our Father made it so—and we cannot interpret it better than by getting as close to it as we can. Let us live where we can see the blue birds, and the green fields, and the clear waters."
"Let us wonder who put the spots in a peacock's tail, and who made the grass to grow, and the sun to shine. Then, in our amazement, let us run in spirit to the Father, like children running with bright faces to their parent to display a daffodil or a violet they have found."

Rank and File.

"Touch elbows with the rank and file. Don't try to work alone. Stand as soldiers in a company, arm to arm, united in a common purpose. When you have gone out into the world, don't attempt to humble your associates who have not had a university education. You will often find the rank and file more than you do. You may find they have had experiences that you have not, and have learned lessons that are not found in text-books."

"Suppose your shirt is soiled, and you send it to be washed and it does not come back on time. Suppose you send for a Bridget and berate her. She is your superior, because she has kept her temper and you have not. You have many superiors whom you may not recognize as such. Find them and speak to them every day."

World Our Home.

"God in His love has given us life. He is our superior, yet have we always talked to Him? Let us think of the world about us as our home, not as a place to which we have been exiled for a time. And let us remember that the Father is always at home with us."

The choir, composed of fifty men and women, led by Miss Lulu Childers, sang "By the Water of Babylon." Miss Childers sang "Remember Me." The accompanist was Miss Beatrice Lewis.

MISS LOCKWOOD'S FUNERAL.

Died at Homeopathic Hospital, and Was Engaged to Be Married.

Funeral services for Miss Lillian Lockwood, only child of Mrs. Mary C. Lockwood, will be held this morning from the family residence, Fourteenth and Girard streets. The services will be attended by immediate members of the family. Interment will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Miss Lockwood died at the Homeopathic Hospital last Friday. She was taken to the hospital Thursday and operated on the following morning. She died in the afternoon. Miss Lockwood was engaged to marry a New York lawyer, and the wedding date was set for the near future.

WILL FIGHT DISCHARGES.

Navy Yard Machinists Preparing Plans for Vigorous Protests.

Machinists of the Washington Navy Yard, under the leadership of Emmett L. Adams, president of Central Lodge, are making preparations for a vigorous protest against the discharge of any of their number on account of lack of work.

This is the continuation of a fight the machinists have been waging for a year against heavy discharges as the work of the yard gradually diminishes upon the completion of the big building programme that followed the Spanish war. They hoped for time the repairs necessary to the Atlantic fleet would bring additional work, but this hope seems doomed to disappointment, as the fleet has returned in excellent shape.

According to Admiral Leutze, commandant of the yard, many of the men will have to go, and it would be preposterous to keep them when there is no work to do. Unless Congress appropriates money for the erection of a new foundry, the force will ultimately have to be cut in half.

IMPORTANT ARREST MADE.

Edward Turner, Negro, Alleged Housebreaker, Locked Up.

Edward Turner, alias George Benson, alias George Brown, was arrested yesterday on a charge of housebreaking by Detectives Klenndienst, Baur, and Cornwell.

He is accused of the theft of woollens valued at $100 from the establishment of L. V. Singer, Thirteenth and E streets northwest. The police say the goods have been shipped to Baltimore.
Turner was preparing to leave Washington when arrested. A suitcase filled with bricks was found in his room at the hotel where he was stopping. The police believe Turner is responsible for a number of tailor shop robberies in this city. He said his home was in Cincinnati.

Lectures on Holy Land.

Mme. Montford repeated her success of the last week with her lecture, "Life and scenes of the Holy Land," at the Metropolitan Memorial M. E. Church last evening. The lecturer is a native of Jerusalem, and her vivid descriptions of Palestine and the characteristics of the people delighted a large audience.

TOURNAMENT IS PROPOSED.

Interest in Army and Navy Circles Over Event at Benning.

The proposal to hold a military and naval tournament at Benning race track some time this summer, has aroused much interest in army and navy circles.

Of the officers working in the interest of the tournament, Gen. James Allen, chief of the Signal Corps; Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, chief of the Bureau of Insular Affairs, and Rear Admiral Pillsbury, chief of the Bureau of Navigation, are the most active.

COURT CONVENES TO-DAY.
New Municipal Judges Will Sit in the Morgan Residence.
The new Municipal Court, provided for by a recent act of Congress, to take the place of the six courts of the justices of the peace, will convene for the first time this morning at 10 o'clock, in the Morgan residence, John Marshall place. Because of the delay in getting into new quarters, it is expected the judges, formerly justices, will find a crowded docket awaiting their attention.
Judge Samuel C. Miller will have offices on the ground floor, Judges Charles S. Bundy, Luke E. Strider, and George C. Aukam will hold court on the second floor, and Judges Thomas H. Callan and Robert H. Terrell will be on the top floor. The judges will sit every day from 9 to 4 o'clock, except Saturdays, when the sessions will terminate at noon.

WILL WATCH EARTHQUAKES.
Plan to Establish Observatory for Study of Seismic Disturbances.
It is planned to establish an observatory for the study of seismic disturbances at Georgetown University. This station will be one link in a chain which the Jesuit order will stretch around the world, to gain better knowledge of the causes of earthquakes.
Rev. Father Himmel, president of the university, already has pledged his aid to the undertaking. The study of seismic disturbances will be made under the direction of Rev. Father John T. Hendrick, S. J. The Jesuit chain of stations is intended to overcome the disadvantages of the use of different kinds of instruments in different countries, making comparisons of disturbances, on any accurate basis, almost impossible.
